EXPLANATION.

The present list of books is meant to admit only titles of works by California authors ; not books by others about California.

Even so, it is by no means complete. Imperfect as it is, however, it shows that California has a creditable literature of her own.

The restriction excludes many valuable and interesting works which, at first thought, might be expected in the list; such as Dana's Two years before the mast; Mrs. Jackson's novel, Ramona; Nordhoff's works on the state, etc.

Many pamphlets have been entered; for pamphlets are often of literary and historical importance.

Articles by California writers in periodicals and public documents have mostly been omitted. In the case of scientific writers, however, reference has sometimes been made to the fact that such articles were written.

A good list of the official publications of the State University has been furnished by the ready kindness of its accomplished librarian, Mr. J. C. Rowell. This list has been appended as a separate chapter, and has been given with considerable fullness, because the University is the most prominent educational institution in the State, and because its publications form an important part of our scientific literature. When to this list are added the separate lists in the catalogue, of works by professors of the University, the record of its literary and scientific activity will be found of surprising extent and significance; and if the limits of this publication had allowed a detailed catalogue of all the scientific papers published by the University professors, in periodicals and public documents, the exhibit would have been much more extensive still.

It would have been desirable to include similar lists for other educational institutions in the State, but circumstances did not allow of doing this. Possibly a future fuller list may be compiled, which may include these, and much other valuable matter now omitted.

J. D. Phelan added, 1932

A second appendix has been added, of law books by California writers. Imperfect as it is, it is enough to show that Californians are at least as competent to handle the serious practical topics of legal rights and wrongs, of property and crime, as to compose stories and poems, or to discuss topography, history or science.

No attempt has been made to deal with the public documents of the State or of its subdivisions, although they contain a great deal of valuable and interesting matter, historical and scientific. A full bibliography of California would include, not only a revised and enlarged edition of the present imperfect list, but an analysis of these public documents, crediting the work of individual writers to them by name; also, the numerous books about California; numerous series of instructive annual reports of many institutions; other serials; an analysis of literary periodicals, in like manner as above suggested for public documents; the names and careers of the newspapers of the State; California maps, etc.

The titles in the present list are made very short, and have no pretension to bibliographical qualities. Pamphlets are designated by "(P.)" "S. F." means San Francisco (as place of publication). Dates and places of publication have been given as far as known. Errors are confessed and regretted.
